CONVICTION OF CRIPPEN.

Dr. Crippen has been given a preliminary hearing, held over; indicted arraigned, tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged two weeks hence all within less time than is sometimes consumed in securing a jury in an American criminal trial.

Is it any wonder that murders are few in England, with this speed in administration and certainty of punishment staring the murderer in the face?

It must have been an impressive scene in the British court, unlike anything we recall in our judicial procedure, when the Lord Chief Justice added after pronouncing sentence of death:

"You have been convicted on evidence which can leave no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that you cruelly murdered your wife and then mutilated her body."

"I advise you to entertain no hope that you can escape the consequences of your crime."

"I implore you to make your peace with Almighty God."

We think we have improved upon the mother country in many things, but we might take a few lessons from her on the enforcement of law.

The Chicago Record-Herald referred to the expedition with which a jury was secured to try Crippen as follows:

THE CRIPPEN JURY: A CONTRAST

We read in the London cable that the jury in the case of Crippen "was secured with little difficulty" in a very short time. Objection was made in three instances only, and this involved no delay worth mentioning. The jury as it stands is a typical body of middle-class tradesmen and clerks.

Let us ask how long it would have taken an Illinois court to secure a "typical" jury to try Crippen had he committed the alleged murder and made the actual subsequent escape in this State? Or in New York, or in Pennsylvania, or anywhere except New Jersey, where criminal justice is lightly efficient for some reason?

The answer is that the legal wrangling, the irrelevant and pointless questions, the interminable examination of possible jurors, the sophistry and nonsense tolerated by the courts, would certainly have meant the waste of a fortnight.

Why this difference? Is not England Anglo-Saxon? Are not indicted men daily protected there in all their substantial rights?

Away with the abuses and absurdities of our criminal justice. Reform and expedite it. The thing can be done and ought to be done.

After the verdict of guilty and sentence of death on Saturday the Record-Herald added the following chapter in its Sunday issue:

THE CRIPPEN TRIAL AND VERDICT: ANOTHER CONTRAST.

To the lay world the expected has occurred in the Crippen case. The jury's verdict of "guilty" is undoubtedly the "moral" verdict of the average man, for the prisoner's defense was lame, hollow, insufficient to raise a reasonable doubt.

Whether the prosecution fully established the fact of murder in the first degree—seeing that even the sex of the human parts that had been found in the cellar was not determined—is a serious legal question which the Court of Criminal Appeals will probably consider. That court, a recent addition to England's judicial system, has fully justified its existence, has safeguarded justice and right without encumbering obstruction and technicality.

Meantime these things are plain, striking and instructive: Crippen has received a fair trial; the case was called on Tuesday and ended yesterday morning; examination, cross-examination, analytical argument, the Judge's charge—all of these phases of the trial left absolutely nothing to be desired from the viewpoint of rational Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence.

How differently we try criminal cases of the same sensational character in the United States! Does anyone doubt that a Crippen case would have consumed at least a month in Illinois or New York? The contrast is emphatically unfavorable to our procedure and practice. Again we say, legal reform is imperative here; we must expedite and modernize our criminal justice.—The Leader.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Gas, Dyspepsia and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes Before You Realize It.

If what you just ate is sitting on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, indigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad Taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapiesin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave, sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs of Indigestion in five minutes. Diapiesin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Bloating or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapiesin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if

MOVED THE CHURCH TOWER

Method of Increasing the Size of Sacred Edifice Employed by Belgians.

A large crowd gathered in the little village of Beeholt on the Belgian frontier to watch the unusual spectacle of a moving church tower. Some time ago it was decided that the church should be enlarged in order to accommodate the increased number of people in the village.

It being impossible to enlarge the church at the choir end it was decided to lengthen the nave. It was thought that this would involve the demolition of the tower, but to this, however, the authorities were opposed, holding that the tower was of great historical value, dating many centuries back, and to this opposition was added that of the villagers, who were against the scheme on sentimental grounds.

It was therefore decided to remove the tower, which is 90 feet high and about 3,000 tons in weight. This enormous mass of stone was cut away at the foundations, and a platform placed beneath it on rails. Slowly and carefully with great patience by the workmen engaged in this extraordinary task the tower is being advanced inch by inch.

Its new place is about fifteen yards in front of the old one, and it is estimated that it will take ten days or a fortnight to reach the spot which is in readiness to receive the moving mass. While the operation was in progress the bells in the steeple were ringing loudly, as though to signal the extraordinary move it was about to make.

Thibetan Tricksters.
Fraud nestles even on the "roof of the nest." In other words, the unsophisticated Thibetan does little cheating on his own account. He is almost the sole purveyor of all musk. It is sold at something like a dozen times its weight in silver, so one would think the scent would be pure. But this is far from the case. It is always sold in "pockets," and the vendors will not allow an examination by the buyer other than touch. But by this means he is unable to determine upon the purity and it frequently happens that the vendor has adulterated his merchandise with amimon, peas, beans, potatoes, mixed with blood, the yolk of eggs, pounded in a mortar until it resembles musk.Hint to the Despondent.
Visit an old-fashioned graveyard, with its graves overgrown with weeds and tombstones falling down, and you will come back to town willing to give life another trial.

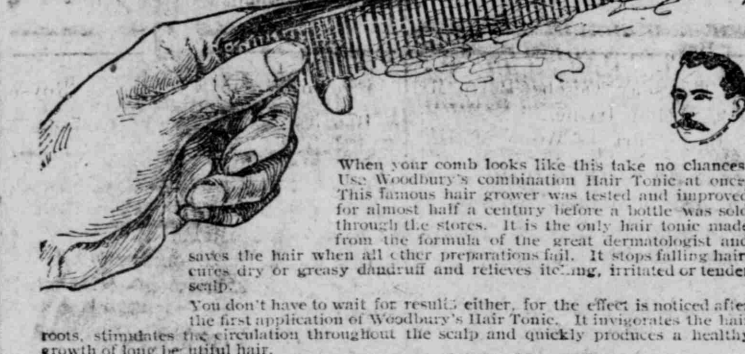

Our Happiness.
Our happiness mainly depends on the freedom that follows with every good deed and contracts beneath acts of evil. Not metaphorically, but literally, does Marcus Aurelius free himself each time he discovers a new truth in indulgence, each time that he pardons, each time he reflects. Still, less of a metaphor is to declare that Macbeth enchains himself anew with every fresh crime. And if this be true of the great crimes of kings and the virtues of heroes, it is no less true of the humblest faults and most hideous virtues of ordinary life. Many a youthful Marcus Aurelius is still about us; many a Macbeth who never stirs from his room.—Maeterlinck.

Made the Best of It.
When the man discovered the note in his neighbor's eye, did he make disparaging remarks and spoil every thing? No. Instead of that he went away and quietly became an oculist, and was thereupon in a position to speak to some purpose. "Ten dollars please," quoth he, the next time he looked at his neighbor's eye; and that day he considered, was only the beginning.—Puck.

HONESTY IS BEST POLICY

Candid Workman's Plea for Raise in Wages Met With Prompt Response.

At a table in the Philadelphia Manufacturers' club the other evening several manufacturers were gathered, discussing subjects with great interest and with an great impartiality. The talk switched in time to the question of wages and all had more or less to say on that point.

One of the men, who employs hundreds of workers, was called on to tell what he thought of the increased cost of living.

"Well," he said, "I know that my men are constantly asking for more wages and saying that they cannot live on what they earn, but one of them gave the richest excuse for a raise that I ever heard."

"He came into the office a few weeks ago and said that he had just been married and wanted more money. In a spirit of jest I said to him: 'So you want to take home more money to little wife? That's what you want the raise for, is it?'"

"Oh, no, sir," he replied, "I want the raise for myself. The wife knows how much I am getting now, sir, and I can't knock down any of my present wages; she gets it all. I need the raise for personal expenses."

"Well, you men can easily guess he got that raise; he is too blamed honest to let get away."
